 Charles Stanley and Matt Jenkins'
 "Beaches, Buns and Bikinis"

Movie Makers and Directors Charles Stanley (pictured above left), Matt Jenkins (pictured above right) and the WDC,L.L.C. productions company are pleased to announce that their 75-minute feature comedy length film "Beaches, Buns and Bikinis" is out of post and has now been entered into the Sundance Film Festival, the SXSW Film Festival and The WorldFest International Film Festival, here in Houston. The filmmakers wrapped the project up late July and production was complete in mid-August of this year after a couple of years in the making.

"Beaches, Buns and Bikinis" is an epic tale of Love Lost and Betrayal set in an industrial wasteland. When A Hot Dog Stand owners lucky good luck charm, a hot dog costume, comes up missing, the once thriving love and prosperity of the hot dog stand and the beach is suddenly thrust into the descending throes of bad luck. The search is on for the magical hot dog suit so good fortune will return to the beach and love is restored.

Produced by Matt Jenkins and Dan Perrin, casting includes Ron Jeremy from Beverly Hills, California, Doug McAbee from Dallas, Aneela Qureshi, Dan Perrin, Melissa Phelan, Omeed Tabrizi, Adrian Jordan, Ty Smith and Fred Ressel all from Houston and surrounding areas.

Principal cinematography of the film was shot in Baytown, Texas and the greater Houston areas. Short scenes shot in Lawton, Oklahoma, the home state of co-director and Cinematographer Charles Stanley. Mr. Stanley used a Sony HVR-V1U HDV CAM to shoot this film. Matt Jenkins (Co-Director and Editor) cut and spliced this movie using Final Cut Pro. Written by Matt Jenkins, Dan Perrin, Charles Stanley, Doug McAbee and Sharon Cheatwood, "Beaches, Buns and Bikinis" contains Red Dirt musician Brandon Jenkin's song "The Whole World's Gone Crazy". "Our goal was to produce a 21st century version of the 1960's Beach movies", said the producers, "It is campy, risqué, quirky and lots of fun. We want the audience to laugh."

The filmmakers have begun talking about the next project but are running with this current movie through the festival circuit. They plan to shoot another feature sometime next summer or fall of 2011.
